Carols on the Mountain ... it's back!

Carols on the Mountain returns to the Ferny Creek Recreation Reserve on Saturday, 12 December.

Now in its fifth year, the event continues to grow in popularity. Unfortunately last year's Carols were completely washed out, so this year we're is back with a vengeance!

Our soloists will be Juliette Hughes and Geraldine Hughes and MC will be local identity, Coby Beatson. A number of local choirs and bands will also perform on the night.

As an added bonus there will be plenty of activities and information for both adults and children.

CFA Community Safety advisors will be on hand with the latest bushfire preparedness information. For the kids, "Little Lex" the baby helitac will be on site along with a range of other fun activities. And being so close to Christmas, Santa will probably be making an appearance!

Sassafras-Ferny Creek Fire Brigade President Richard Laidler said the event celebrated Christmas and community in the hills. "It's a chance to come together and reflect on the year past and the new one to come," he said.

Mr Laidler said with the events of last February still fresh in everyone's minds, it was equally important to celebrate the "glue" that binds communities like those in the hills together.

The reserve will open at 6.30pm. Entry is by gold coin donation. The event is alcohol free. There will be a sausage sizzle, with soft drinks, glow sticks and balls, and carol booklets also available for purchase.

Parking will be available in the nearby Ferny Creek Horticultural Society.
